Students of Fuller Theological Seminary engage in Practical Theology

At ABTS, there is a clear desire to think with the mind of Jesus. ABTS' Institute of Middle East Studies (IMES) seeks to do this as well through its partnership with the School of Intercultural Studies (SIS) of Fuller Theological Seminary in California. "It's about thinking globally, with God's heart for the world," says Martin Accad, director of IMES. The partnership is embodied partly through the practicum that Fuller students complete for their graduate degrees. Lebanon is one of many options that Fuller students can choose from for their practicum.

Introduction

With a declaration signed on June 6, 1966, the Lebanese Ministry of Education officially recognized the Near East School of Theology as an Institution of Higher Learning. Thus, the degrees conferred by the School are fully accredited in Lebanon. The degrees thus recognized are the following: Bachelor of Theology (B.Th.), Bachelor of Theology in Christian Education (B.Th.C.E.), Master of Divinity (M.Div.), Master of Christian Education (M.A.C.E.) and Master of Sacred Theology (S.T.M.). The degree of Bachelor in Christian Education (B.A.C.E.) is granted by Haigazian University, with which the N.E.S.T. cooperates for part of the program. The "Diploma in Theological Studies" is not an academic. more
